NOTE MAY BE CLUE TO LOST OCEAN FLIERS

A scrawled note written with an indelible pencil, found in a bottle floating off Tiburon yesterday, may be a clue to the fate of trans-Pacific fliers who failed in the hop to Hawaii, police believe.

The authenticity of the note was doubted in some quarters, authorities pointing out that no longitude is given in the note, which read as follows:

40-20 south. Out of gas. G. E. The latitude, according to authorities, extends through the Pacific along a line approximately between the southern tip of South America and Australia.

That the bottle could float from such a latitude to San Francisco bay was thought improbable.

Rejuvenation Of Women Promised By New Method

(Copyright by United Press)
London, May 22.—Gland operations which cause "moral and physical transformation" in women and caused white hair to turn to its normal color have been developed by Dr. Serge Voronoff, he revealed in an interview with the U. P. tonight.

A triple gland operation by which a woman may be rejuvenated even more successfully than men was explained by Voronoff.

"Recently I discovered the cause of the hitherto comparatively unsatisfactory results of pains by gland grafting operations on women," he said. "This was due to the fact that the rejuvenation liquid was circulated throughout the body by female glands not so powerful as the corresponding gland in men."

Cheek Rumored For Post Of El Cerrito Chief

R. R. Cheek, county traffic officer, will become chief of police of El Cerrito and Forest Wright, the present chief of police will retire June 1, according to rumors circulating in El Cerrito and neither affirmed nor denied by City Councilman J. R. Beck, commissioner of fire and police.

According to this rumor, Chief Wright will retain his post as tax collector and superintendent of street and pond master.

Beck stated that he was not ready at this time to announce any changes in the personnel of the police department and that announcements would be made only when acted upon by the city council. The fact that the city council called for examinations to be held this week in the police department in order that appointments may be made next Monday night, effective June 1, is taken as lending credence to the report that a general shakeup in the department is planned.

DEFENSE OF CITY BRINGS MAJOR BATTLE

LONDON, May 22, (U.P.)—A major battle for the possession of Peking is developing between Chinese forces numbering more than 200,000 men, according to a Tokyo dispatch to the Daily Mail tonight quoting the Japanese war office.

Two hundred thousand northern troops have taken up the defense of Peking and are being attacked by two hundred and twenty thousand Chinese forces. The dispatch said: "Marching Chang Tso-Lin, the northern war lord, has thrown out his troops on a line from Nankun pass around Peking by way of Beiping and Tangchow, and General Chiang Kai-Shek's forces have made contact with the northerners, according to the Japanese war office."

The fighting was said to be continuing along this line, probably between Chang Tso-Lin's and General Peng Yu-Huang's forces. Chang Tso-Lin's decision to defend his capital follow reports that he would withdraw to Manchuria before the three victorious southern armies without attempting a battle, which was said to be unpopular with his soldiers, who have sympathized with the nationalists.

The deal, one of the largest in this county in recent months, was negotiated by J. R. John, Oakland realtor and handled through the Contra Costa County Title Co.

NEW ISSUE OF STOCK OFFERED SHAREHOLDERS

American Telephone and Telegraph company directors voted to offer its more than four hundred thirty thousand shareholders one hundred eighty five million dollars new stock at one hundred dollars a share in return of one new for each share held on June one nineteen hundred twenty eight.

The money will be used in financing the needs of the Associated companies of the Bell System and the long lines of the American Telephone and Telegraph company in plant and equipment for the ever growing telephone business of the country.

The issue is in accordance with the statement of policy made by President Walter S. Gifford in the last annual report in which he said:

"The American Telephone and Telegraph company accepts its responsibility for a nation wide telephone service as a public trust. It is its duty to provide the American people with adequate, dependable and satisfactory telephone service at a reasonable cost. To attain this end, it is the policy of the company to pay only reasonable regular dividends and, for part of the new capital needed, to offer from time to time new stock to its stockholders on favorable terms, for it believes this method of financing will provide the money needed for the business cheaply and with more certainty. Notices to the stockholders are being mailed today and the subscription warrants, in both full and fractional form, will be remaining installments as of De-

MOSCOW GRAND THEATRE HIT FOR "CULTURE"

MOSCOW, May 22.—The Grand Theatre, the home of opera and ballet, is being violently attacked on all sides as the "last stand of reactionary bourgeois culture" and being accused of "Czarist and counter-revolutionary" propaganda. The storm which has been gathering for some time, broke when the actors refused to appear on the evening before Easter unless they received double pay and then accepted engagements to sing at the midnight services of the churches.

Alexander A. Burdakov, Communist and worker director of the opera is the center of the storm. He is accused of breaking tradition agreements, of submitting to the anti-Semitic prejudices of the famous orchestra conductor, Golovine, of exploiting child labor of refusing to produce new and revolutionary operas.

Investigate Conditions. A joint commission from the Commissariat of Education and the trade unions, appointed to investigate conditions, reports that the actors are divided into "sons and step sons" and that the favored ones are always the pre-revolutionary artists who refuse to fall in line with the modern Russian conception of art.

"Why is it?" asks one newspaper "that all our other theatres are enthusiastic about the promotion of proletarian culture, but the Grand Theatre keeps on producing the operas and ballets that were favored by the Czar and keep alive bourgeois ideals? Even Russian operas are neglected for Italian, and the only new ballet that has been produced "Red Poppy" is a poor attempt to mold a proletarian theme along bourgeois lines."

The commission points out that children in the ballet school are required to dance in the ballet chorus and are paid only 30 cents for a night's work while the stars, most of them not union members, are paid as high as $250 a month, a high salary in Soviet Russia.

Through re-organization along trade union lines of the entire staff, from scene shifters to prima donnas, is the first item proposed by the commission, in its effort to force the opera into line with Soviet cultural ideals. Then will come the weeding out of those singers and dancers who are too reminiscent of pre-revolutionary opera and their replacement by younger artists with newer ideals and finally the introduction of new music, staging, dancing.

At the same time it is planned to spend more than a million dollars in the next five years for a complete renovation of the building, mechanization of the stage along the most modern lines, re-decoration of the auditorium, the purchase of new scenery and the installation of a more modern system of stage lighting.

ADDRESSES CLUB. Members of the Richmond Exchange club, meeting last night in Hotel Carquinez, heard an interesting talk from H. S. Winans, national representative of the organization. Lloyd Bolt was chairman of the evening.

—RAGS WANTED—

Wide Campaign Is Launched By Anti-Rodeo Club

The Initiative Petition of the California Anti-Rodeo-Clarity association with headquarters at 2300 Ellsworth street, Berkeley, is launched throughout the state. This petition calls, not for the suppression of the rodeo, but for the elimination of its cruelties, of which the following features are a part: bull-dogging, which often results in broken necks, backs and horns plunging into the earth; the chewing of the ears of animals to bring them to submission; highlighting with artificial substance for the purpose of inspiring animals and the wild horse racing which in the capture, transportation and final handling of the animal is the climax in the worst form of mistreatment.

The association was organized a year ago. Last summer much of the evidence on which its charges are based was gathered by means of the moving picture camera whereby close-ups were obtained in the arena of many California rodeos. Ben E. Wilson, noted lecturer, will take the field for the association and demonstrate by means of the pictures the features which should be outlawed. Volunteer self-enforcing squads to the petition are being deputized throughout the state. Miss Edith Latham of the Latham foundation is president of the association and Mrs. Walter Manchester is vice-president and campaign manager. Isaac Lester, 218 Sixth street, Richmond, Telephone Richmond 369-W, is special representative for Contra Costa county and Mrs. Edith Brown, 33 Water Street, Telephone Richmond 1545-W, representative for the association in Richmond.

Egyptians To Hold School For Guides

CAIRO, May 22.—A timely innovation that will be welcomed by the harassed American tourist is the decision of the Ministry of Education to open a school for the training of guides and dragomen. This may make sight seeing in Egypt something of a pleasure instead of an ordeal often made painful by self taught and self imposed guides who if they were not one of the ten plagues, would at least have been the seventh if Pharaoh had continued to misbelieve towards the Israelites.

Only those who have visited Egypt and have suffered at the hands of these guides can appreciate the boon this will bring the traveler who lands in Egypt in happy anticipation of pleasant hours in seeing the world famous antiquities revealing a glimpse of the dim past.

The gibb tongue of these guides might deceive the green traveller into believing the most extraordinary stories of what is usually a conglomeration of truth, half the truth and the fruit of a once fertile imagination now simply repeated by rote by members of the craft.

BILLIE DOVE

IS STARRING

IN PLAY HERE

Billie Dove's beauty is reaching the screen more perfectly through improvements in motion picture lighting, cameras and film. For this reason "the most beautiful star" is better than ever in her latest picture "The Heart of a Follies Girl" which heads an excellent bill at the California Theatre.

Larry Kent, a new and handsome young leading man, plays opposite her. Lowell Sherman, Mildred Harris and Carlissa Seymore lead the list of a very fine supporting cast, which by the way, includes a chorus of nearly fifty of Hollywood's most shapely dancers.

Like Cleopatra, Miss Dove has not hesitated to surround herself with other beauties in "The Heart of a Follies Girl." John Francis Dillon directed the picture. The highly dramatic plot was adapted for the screen from Adela Rogers St. John's magazine story of the same title.

Despite the glamour, beauty and color of the story background, very warm and real human characters are evolved and comedy vies with pathos in this intimate glimpse of the life of the famous Follies girl.

Other film features include "The Stunt Man" featuring Larry Semon, Felix the Cat and Kinogram.

ARAB POTENTATES RESIST BRITISH ENCROACHMENTS AS AGREEMENTS ARE REPUDIATED

JERUSALEM, May 23.—Great Britain's worries in this part of the world are growing in proportion to her extended power, every Arab potentate making a futile show of resistance wherever a new link in the British chain of communication is forged.

With the Iraq nationalists repudiating in Baghdad agreements entered with Great Britain in London, with subjects of the Emir Abdullah kicking over the traces because the British agreement guaranteeing the "independence" of Transjordan makes a vassal of their ruler and a joke of their "self-governing institutions"; with the most important tribes of Sultan Ibn Saud, the Wahabi, kicking over the traces and raiding the boundaries of neighboring and "infidel" Moslem states, and with Kuwait and other British possessions along the Arabian shores of the Persian Gulf jeopardized by the Wahabi fanatics, English statesmanship is obliged to pay increasing attention to Aden. This Red Sea port has served for many years as a half way port along the oceanic route to India—a station as important in its way as the Suez Canal itself—which in view of the new Anglo-Egyptian deadlock also calls for the most astute statesmanship and proverbial patience to keep the Egyptian nationalists from making it the world's most turbulent political pool.

Other Worries

On top of these Middle-Eastern anxieties, relations between Great Britain and the ruler of Yemen have taken a turn for the worse. To make her hold on Aden doubly sure, Great Britain is said to have annexed territory in the vicinity of the port, a procedure to which every body, including the ruler of the Yemen, is said to have agreed, except Iman Yahia, King of Yemen. He maintains that he and not the vassal chiefs should have been consulted about the latest acquisitions.

A leading Arab, authority and a personal of the Imam, Colonel Harold F. Jacob, was sent to Sannaa to appease the Yemenite, probably throwing out a few hints as to what is likely to happen to an Arab ruler if he is unreasonable, citing perhaps the lamentable career of the Hashemite ruler, Ekberhard Hussein, who was removed to the healthier climate of Cyprus for fancying himself a real power in Arabia.

Began Recruiting

In the meantime the Imam began recruiting an army, sending the heir to the throne at the head of part of it to fly the flag in different parts of the rocky domain. One detachment was so foolish as to ask for hospitality at one of the districts where Great Britain had established friendly relations with the Sheikh.

Emboldened by the British backing the Sheikh offered fight instead of food. The expedition felt justified in punishing him for this unseemable breach of desert etiquette by so reports run—cutting off both his arms and legs. The British retaliated by raining gasoline cans filled with explosives from the air, laying waste several of the villages in the affected area.

From the British point of view Yemen with its inaccessible capital must be brought to terms now that the Wahabi menace is beginning to shift the sands of the desert, which must be kept from forming a sand dune at Aden. There is therefore talk of an armistice concluded between Great Britain and the King of Yemen.

GLORIOUS BETSY

NOVELIZED BY
ARLINE DE HAAS

Copyright 1928, Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc.
"GLORIOUS BETSY," starring Dolores Costello, is a Warner Bros. picturization of this novel. Based on the play by Rida Johnson Young.

SYNOPSIS

The bewitching Betsy Patterson has been staying with her father at Sweet Springs Inn when they are called home to Baltimore to enter the arms of Bonaparte, brother of Napoleon. While at the inn, she is secretly attracted to her French tutor, whom she knows as Le Vert. Elaborate preparations are made for the Patterson home. Everybody is waiting to receive the distinguished guest. Betsy steals into the room to meet her supposed tutor. Le Vert tells her of his love. Betsy throws ambition to the winds and promises to marry him. Her father, discovering this, is furious, and hurries Betsy away.

With their most courtly bows St. Pierre, Dufresne and De Langiac bent over the hand of glorious Betsy. And once more their eyes at tested the good taste of their erstwhile charge. But their minds were so intent upon finding Jerome or making some provisions for his appearance that they could scarcely do justice even to "Glorious Betsy." The crowd of guests gathered about her and rendered her homage, complimenting her on her beauty, her loveliness, her charm. But like the three Frenchmen, her mind seemed preoccupied, and, although they did not realize it, all four were awaiting the entrance of the same person.

Suddenly the three men's eyes all turned in the same direction. They stared. And with them, Betsy. What the three saw was Je-

At first the young man dismissed Jerome Bonaparte swinging up the Patterson walk just as though he had never disappeared. And re-her surged in their hearts. He was here at last—but not as he had been. He should be. What Betsy saw was the tutor, wrapped in his long black cape, matching up to his knees, and with the air of a prince. And her heart fluttered, because her lover was there.

And then St. Pierre, Dufresne and De Langiac stepped forward. They greeted their charge. They hung back the cape into the arms of a waiting negro. The splendor of the French uniforms dazzled the eyes of the beholders. With military precision the four men came forward into the reception room. They stopped, clicked their heels together.

"Welcome, Bonaparte, brother of the First Consul and Emperor of France!" St. Pierre's voice rang through the room, sending chills and quivers up and down the spines of all the women, who, with the men, stared at the dignitary, amazed and silent.

Major Patterson stepped forward and then stopped dead. His outstretched hand almost failed in its clutch. While, as for Betsy, she caught hold of the mantelpiece and gasped. Mary reached for her cousin's hand and gave it a tight little squeeze, as though to reassure her of the presence of a friend. In the midst of the flutter of excitement the voice of St. Pierre came to Betsy as though through a fog. He, with Jerome, was standing before her.

"Monseigneur," the voice was excited, "Captain Bonaparte craves the honor of being presented to you."

Mechanically Betsy held out her hand. Jerome took it, bowed low and kissed it. Then he straightened up, caught Betsy's eyes and smiled. The smile reassured her and brought the color flooding to her cheeks.

proclaimed, "has done me the honor of promising to become my wife."

"Once more that stilled hush fell over the crowd. Then, like some mechanical monster, they surged forward in mass and surrounded the pair. Women kissed Betsy and shook hands with Jerome. Men kissed Betsy and shook hands with Jerome. Everybody it seemed, was kissing Betsy and shaking hands with Jerome and gushing congratulations and "dears" and "ohs" and "ahs" and all the sort of remarks usually made when such a tremendous excitement occurs. All, that is, except Jerome's three countrymen.

St. Pierre looked at Dufresne, Dufresne looked at De Langiac, De Langiac looked at St. Pierre. Then the three put their heads together and began to whisper. The heavy, white message was brought into view, and each one shook his head, a little sadly, a little ominously. There were more murmurs, and at last St. Pierre stepped to Jerome's side and requested silence. The crowd fell back.

"I have news," St. Pierre announced, "just brought from France. I have the honor to report that on May 18th last, St. Pierre continued, 'your brother,' he looked at Jerome meaningly, 'Napoleon,' Napoleon, Emperor of France."

There was a gasp, a startled hush, and then the crowd broke forth into cheers.

"The Emperor! To the Emperor! Vive la France!" Glasses were raised, and the crowd shouted and cheered. People shouted and laughed, poured their congratulations into the ears of the Frenchmen and raised their congratulations of joy about Betsy and Jerome. Men became excited, and a political situation. Women stared, eyed at Betsy, who clutched Jerome's hand for a moment and then raised her proud head in a queenly manner. The center of all eyes, she surveyed the crowd imperiously, as though born a princess. The red flush that had mantled her cheeks and brow at the first shock of the situation faded, and in turn her face became white and beautifully patrician.

Of course Miss Massenbird had to kiss her niece again and again, and flutter about and peck Jerome on the cheek, and bow low over his hand, and smile and nod her head in a most superior manner when anyone addressed her. As for the Major he was still so dumbstruck that he could scarcely move, save to clasp his daughter's waist, and blow his nose hoarsely. And the punch bowl was surrounded, and everyone made extremely merry, and the ladies said they would have "just a sip of wine" to celebrate, and the servants rushed about and tried to carry out orders.

But in the midst of all the gala celebration there were three very dark and gloomy faces. St. Pierre drew his comrades, De Langiac and Dufresne, aside and out into the deserted hallway. They watched, for a moment, the sight of the fete, the happiness, the gaiety. Then St. Pierre spoke.

"Well?" he questioned.

"The others shrugged their shoulders, waiting for their leader to voice the thoughts that haunted each man's mind.

"We have, indeed, a problem to face," St. Pierre pronounced, twirling his mustaches. "I am at a loss. I do not know how to proceed. If we use threats—he may disappear again. If we command—he laughs. She is indeed beautiful," he watched the movements of Betsy and commented on them, pointing out to the others "One moment!" St. Pierre spoke. "I will bring him here."

The other two stood talking, and watching their leader tread his way through the crowd until he stood beside Jerome, in whose ear he whispered. At first the young man seemed puzzled, but after some explanation to Betsy, a bow to the others, they saw St. Pierre, followed by Jerome, returning.

For an instant a chill swept Betsy's heart. Always these three men spelled separation from Jerome. How strange it seemed to now be calling him Jerome—when just a few moments before she had been calling him "Monseigneur La Vert," and he had pretended to be angered at his seeming indifference. And now, he was Captain Jerome Bonaparte, brother of the Emperor of France, and she was already betrothed to him. Perhaps after they were married and Jerome had already suggested that that should be soon—these men would cease to disturb her peace of mind.

But everyone was bowing to her, and making her feel that although she was already married, and there was her father, always at her side, even though he smiled worriedly. And she leaned on his arm, noting his unerring safety, and the faint, and little quiver that every now and then crept about his mouth.

LIONS ARE SUBDUED BY FIRE OUTFIT

The Firemen won another game in the Commercial Twilight League last night at First Street park, winning from the Lions by a score of 12 to 6.

The Lions showed a big improvement over the former games in fact in the opening innings of the game, it looked as though the Lions were going to defeat the Firemen. But about that time, the Firemen knuckled down for a win, and the score tied 6 all in the first of the fifth they scored three runs and repeated in the sixth.

Key started the game for the Firemen, walking one and striking out two. Martin finished the game walking three and fanning five. The Lions got seven hits off Key and only two after Martin entered in the third inning.

Johnny Miller pitched for the Lions, striking out two, walking eight, hitting one and allowing six hits.

The Firemen got none of those heavy hits that have been characterizing their games this year. Bingles were all they got. The Lions kept closer watch on the ball and caught more of them than theretofore. It was this good fielding that kept the score down.

Dick Paasch furnished a little excitement by breaking the only bat so far this season.

Spike Elder umpired a good game. No kicks from either side. So let's give the boy a hand.

FISH, GAME WAR BROUGHT TO FRONTIER

SAN FRANCISCO, May 22.—Carrying the message of fish and game conservation and protection to one of California's real frontier countries, Rodney Ellsworth, assistant to Dr. Bryant in the Bureau of Education of the Division of Fish and Game, has a still program of lectures in Trinity county mapped out.

Following out a plan to send a lecturer and a number of educational fish and game films into a county after a program has been arranged by the regular fish and game deputy in charge of the territory, Ellsworth will speak and show pictures at Weaverville, Hayfork and Trinity Center and wind up his program by invading the Hoopa Indian Reservation where the conservation message will be put up to the Indians and inhabit the reserve.

The fish and game educational department lecturers speak in schools in the day time and show the films that have been made of the various activities of the division. At night meetings previously arranged are taken care of, where films are again shown and conservation and protection addresses given.

This will be the first time that films have been shown and conservation talks made on the Hoopa reservation. The Indians have expressed a great desire to hear the lecture and see the pictures and the Ellsworth invasion was arranged by Deputy G. O. Laws of Weaverville.

Trinity county is hard to reach as even the county seat, Weaverville, is not on a railroad line. In winter it is quite difficult to get into this territory, but fish game deputies are always on patrol duty.

How absurd, you say. But not so at all. Her Electric Range with its automatic time and temperature controls is doing the cooking automatically, while she is away from the kitchen.

The dinner placed in the cold oven at one o'clock starts to cook at four. The temperature control keeps the oven heat just right. The current will turn off at six. All this is done electrically, while she is playing cards, motoring or shopping.

Would you like to have the meals cooked while you're away? Over thirty thousand California women let the Electric Range do this for them. Our representative will gladly tell you about the modern electrical way of cooking.

HOOVER WILL RESIGN POST FOR CAMPAIGN

By RAYMOND CLAPPER
United Press Staff Correspondent
Washington, May 22, (U.P.)—In the event Secretary of Commerce Hoover wins the republican presidential nomination, he will resign from the cabinet within a few days and make preparations for a front porch campaign from some point convenient to Chicago, according to the expectation of his friends here.

Several mid-west locations for a campaign residence have been suggested. Lake Geneva, Wis., a short distance out of Chicago, is being urged as a favorable spot. In any event Hoover probably will go to some point in Wisconsin, Michigan or the north shore outside of Chicago and receive front porch delegations which he would address with radio hook-ups cut in. Some outside speeches will be inevitable, but Hoover's dislike of public speaking will cause this activity to be held to the minimum.

Shortly after the convention, if he is nominated, he will go to Palo Alto, Calif., outside San Francisco, where he has a home on the campus of Leland Stanford university.

CONFER DEGREE

Alpha lodge of Masons conferred the first degree at a stated meeting held in Masonic hall last night. Homer Patterson, senior deacon, was in charge of the degree work and the meeting was presided over by Worshipful Master J. W. Smiley.
